

ESSENTIAL CIVIL WAR CURRICULUM

Michael A. Martorelli is in his 41st year as a finance industry professional and 22nd year as a Civil War re-enactor. When beginning his reenacting career, his experience as an artillery officer in the Pennsylvania Army National Guard was largely responsible for his decision to join Battery F, 1st Pa Lt Arty (Ricketts' Battery) as a private; he is now the commander of that organization and a prominent leader in the artillery reenacting community. Combining his interests in finance and history, Mr. Martorelli has written several articles and book reviews for Financial History, the Magazine of the Museum of American Finance. During the 1970s, he earned a BS in Business Administration and an MBA from Drexel University in Philadelphia. In 2011, he also earned an MA in History from American Military University.
