

ESSENTIAL CIVIL WAR CURRICULUM

Scott Thompson (West Virginia University) is a PhD candidate and graduate instructor studying nineteenth-century American history in general and the Civil War era in particular. He completed his master's degree at Texas Tech University, with his thesis focusing on irregular warfare and military occupation in northern Virginia. An essay based on his thesis appeared in The Guerrilla Hunters: Irregular Conflicts during the Civil War, Brian D. McKnight and Barton A. Myers, eds., (Baton Rouge: Louisiana State University Press, 2017). Since starting at WVU, his research and dissertation focus on black U.S. soldier mutinies and African-American resistance throughout the nineteenth century.
