

ESSENTIAL CIVIL WAR CURRICULUM

Eugene D. (Gene) Schmiel (Ph.D. The Ohio State University, 1969) is a retired U.S. Department of State Foreign Service Officer, whose overseas assignments included Charge' d'Affaires of U.S. embassies in Iceland and Djibouti and Consul General in Mombasa, Kenya. Before joining State, he was an Assistant Professor of History at St. Francis University (PA), specializing in 19th century American History. His book, "Citizen-General: Jacob Dolson Cox and the Civil War Era," was published by Ohio University Press in 2014, and it was a History Book Club selection. His article, "Near Miss at Antietam Creek: Ohio General Jacob Cox vs. Robert E. Lee," was published in the Ohio History magazine "Timelines." He now works part-time for the Department of State and resides in Gainesville, Virginia.
