

ESSENTIAL CIVIL WAR CURRICULUM

Marc Wortman Ph.D. is the author of The Bonfire: The Siege and Burning of Atlanta (2009) and The Millionaires' Unit: The Aristocratic Flyboys Who Fought the Great War and Invented American Air Power (2006), both published by PublicAffairs Books. Recipient of Sigma Delta Chi and CASE feature writing awards as a freelance journalist, he has written feature articles on a wide range of subjects for Vanity Fair, Town & Country, The Daily Beast, and other popular and specialized publications. He is a Contributing Writer for Start-Up. Along the way, he was a columnist for the New Haven Register and an editor at the Yale Alumni Magazine. He has spoken to audiences around the country and appeared on CNN, NPR, C-SPAN BookTV, CPTV, GPB, and many other radio and television outlets. Born in St. Louis, he grew up in the Washington, DC, area. Following college at Brown University, he received a doctorate from Princeton University. He lives in New Haven.